BILLS IN GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Columbia, Sept. 28.—Bills providing for an emergency warehouse system for storing cotton and state validation of cotton warehouse receipts, prohibiting the planting of more than eight acres of cotton to the plow in 1915, and a bill to submit to the people at the coming general election a proposed bond issue of $1,500,000 to place the state on cash basis and complete the state asylum, have been prepared and will be introduced simultaneously in the house and senate when the general assembly meets on Tuesday, of to consider means for relieving the Kay, spent the week end with relatives next week in extraordinary session, crisis now facing the state through the closing of the European cotton markets.

These bills were agreed on and drawn up by Senator John L. McLaurin, of Marlboro, and Representative W. F. Stevenson, of Chesterfield, who will introduce them in their respective houses. Mr. Stevenson met Mr. McLaurin in conference at the latter's plantation in Marlboro county, where the bills were put in shape and are now ready for introduction. At that conference the only other person was W. D. Grist, editor of The York Enquirer.

The warehouse bill is an emergency measure and provides for the state to take over such warehouses as the commission thinks feasible for the purpose of storing cotton. The commission to handle the measure under the bill will consist of the governor, commissioner of agriculture and a third member, to be elected by the legislature. $50,000 is to be appropriated to put the measure into effect immediately. The state is to validate all warehouse receipts and act as the agent for the individual grower to get a loan on this cotton. To this end the authors point the way to the introduction of a banking bill, the establishment of a central bank under the national banking act by the state which would negotiate the loans for the individual growers of cotton on the warehouse receipts, the money to be gotten directly from the government treasury and lent to the farmer at as cheap a rate as possible, a little to be charged for commission which would go towards the expenses of the bank.

This would be the establishment of a state bank. A measure which is now being debated by the Texas legislature for that state. The warehouse receipt is to carry the absolute title to the cotton, and means have been devised to this end in the bill without danger to liens which may exist on the cotton.

The acreage reduction bill would prevent the planting of more than fifty per cent of that of 1914, and is based on the amount of stock used in cultivating the present crop. It would allow a maximum of eight acres of cotton to the mule. Heavy penalties are attached to any excess which is made a criminal offense, punished by a fine of $25 for every acre over eight planted, or imprisonment at hard labor. A survey is to be made by the clerk of court. The constitutional amendment for $1,500,000 bond issue at 4 per cent to place state on cash basis and complete asylum, is the idea of Representative Stevenson. It is suggested that funds arising there from could be used temporarily to finance the warehouse measure and then be replaced. It is also suggested that such bond money could be used for a possible extension of the payment of taxes.

The idea of the authors of these measures is emergency legislation which they believe, will enable the state to borrow money direct from the federal government through a state bank to be established by supplemental legislation, and loan it direct to the cotton producers at a low rate of interest. They would have the measure to go into effect immediately, so as to afford instant relief and save the situation now threatening the South.

Senator McLaurin left tonight for New Orleans to attend the general cotton conference. He will be joined there by Representative Stevenson, and they with Dr. Wade H. Stackhouse, the president of the state cotton conference, will go to Austin, Texas, to urge on Governor Colquitt, and the Texas legislature, the passage of a bill reducing cotton acreage in the state next year at least fifty per cent.

They will also study the warehouse measure already passed there and the proposed act to establish a state bank in Texas, to negotiate loans on the warehouse receipts.

Mr. Stevenson went to Chesterfield tonight cases in which he is interested continued, and will leave for the west tomorrow night. He is scheduled to come to Columbia in the morning and will, it is stated, give copies of the bills to the press and have copies printed which will be mailed to every member of the old and the new legislature.

LET THE CHURCH BELLS RING

Our hearts are wrung by the accounts of the destruction of beautiful edifices and of the ruin of works of art in Europe. It all seems so needless, so cruel, so wanton. Cathedrals which have stood for centuries inspiring the people to thoughts of "the true, the beautiful and the good," have been razed by German siege guns. No longer will their sweet, silvery chimes ring out in glad acclaim the hymns which have brought joy to so many hearts in the foregone centuries, which leads to some reflection upon the subject of churches in our own country. There have been almost a revolution in the construction of church buildings in this country. Once the highest steeple was the admired of all—the unfading sign of the "biggest" church. The history of the church steeple, the index finger pointing heavenward, is in itself interesting and could be discussed at length. But the steeple is being discarded. The material heretofore used, in a spire on a steeple is now used in the construction of class rooms.

In some places the use of church bells has been placed among the things archaic. What a great pity! It is rare that church bells annoy, and in cases of extreme illness provision may be made, of course the church bell is not really needed in cities, where members of the congregation may live at such a distance that the utilitarian purpose for which the bell was created may not be served. Watches, clocks and other reminders there are in plenty for the person who wishes to get to church on time.

Some how or other, it seems a lonely Sabbath without its church bells! It is taking some of the sweetness out of service, some of the essence out of religion. Because they are not needed is markers of time is one more reason why the church bells are needed as reminders of the happiness of the eternity of the righteous.

There is music in the church bell, and there is melody in the anthem of all the bells of a Christian community when they ring and swing and chime the rhythm of the call to a sweet service, as Poe says "keeping time, time, time, in a Russian sort of rhyme." What a world of happiness their harmony foretells! How they ring out their delight From the mellow golden notes all in tune."

There is something so appealing in the music of the bells and the story they foretell that we trust the cities of the South will never lose their bells.

BE MERCIFUL

We are admonished of the approach of winter. The flurry of inclement weather is but a forecast of the severe season that we are told, the South will experience. The weather forecasters have their various and respect ways of making predictions, but there appears to be unanimity of sentiment that all of nature's signs indicate a severe and probably a long winter.

Man is given the opportunity to protect himself against the weather, but there are helpless things that claim man's care which should receive mercy in the name of Christianity. Fly the poor, shivering, shivering, shivering plodder on man's command, hearing his voice only to shrink, a "Man's divine sign" could do much to prolong the period of usefulness and at the same time bring contentment and relief from pain to the poor beasts in their stalls, and the shicken in the bleek yards. Clean stalls, good food, a body groomed with care, plenty of sweet smelling straw. These things are not impossible to give to the patient, dumb servants that cannot speak for themselves, and much as man himself.

Mercy is commended to us by the holy book. In Proverbs, the wise man Solomon tells us: "The merciful man doeth good to his own soul; but he that is cruel troubleth his own soul."

Christ himself in his wondrous Sermon on the Mount enumerates as the fifth beatitude "Blessed are the merciful—for they shall obtain mercy." In each instance there is a promise to the man who is merciful, and merciful means more than compassionate. It means considerate, thoughtful, unselfish.
